D. ACCOUNT OF PROCEEDINGS

8. The outgoing Chairman of the Fifth meeting of the Lusaka-based MULPOC Council of Ministers, Hon. Dr. H. Meebelo highlighted the MULPOC activities during 1982 and stated that one of its greatest achievements was the establishment of the Preferential Trade Area for Eastern and Southern African States, which he hoped would open a new chapter of economic relatioships among the member States of the Subregion, and promote the spirit of collective self-reliance. He stressed that this new venture would assist the member States of the subregion in their fight against the racist apartheid regime of South Africa and attain economic and political independence. He therefore invited the Rt. Hon. Prime Minister to officially open the meeting.

9. In his opening speech, the Rt. Hon. Prince Mabandla, Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Swaziland welcomed delegates to the Sixth meeting of the MULPOC Council of Ministers for Eastern and Southern African States and said that it was an honour and privilege for the Kingdom of Swaziland to host the meeting which was of great significance in that it was taking place soon after the launching of the Preferential Trade Area for Eastern and Southern African States (PTA) in December 1982.

10. There was a need to further explore areas of co-operation and collaboration in the economic development of the subregion, which would inevitably lead to economic liberation, improved standards of living and the eradication of all forms of poverty and deprivation haunting the people of the subregion.

11. Despite all the efforts made by the United Nations to effect important reforms in the current structure of the world economy, many developing nations were in the grips of massive unemployment, widespread hunger and starvation, and mounting trade deficits.

12. Given the current world economic recession, developing countries needed to stand together and formulate joint strategies for economic development, and harness the vast human, and material resources in the subregion and thereby liberate their economies from dependency and exploitation. He strongly urged the meeting to search for practical and effective strategies with which to salvage the economies of the countries in the subregion.

13. In view of the many problems facing the subregion, the only viable alternative was subregional co-operation. He ardently hoped that the MULPOC, PTA and SADCC would co-ordinate their programmes to avoid duplication of efforts and conflict of interests. With goodwill and determination, the subregion should be able to triumph over its current difficulties and move forward on the road to economic independence and self-reliance.

14. In his statement, Professor Adebayo Adedeji, the Executive Secretary of the ECA expressed sincere gratitude and appreciation to Her Majesty the Queen Regent, the Government and the entire people of the Kingdom of Swaziland for hosting the Sixth Meeting of the MULPOC Council of Ministers for Eastern and Southern African States and that of the MULPOC Committee of Officials. On behalf of the Honourable Ministers and distinguished delegates he expressed most heartfelt condolences to Her Majesty the Queen Regent, members of the Royal Family, the Government and the people of the Kingdom of Swaziland for the loss of the Late King Sobhuza II, and paid tribute to him for his contribution in building not only the Swazi nation but also the economic development of the Eastern and Southern African subregion.

15. The Sixth Meeting of the Lusaka MULPOC Council of Ministers was taking place at a time of great disarray in international economic relations. Africa, because of its marked vulnerability to cyclical fluctuations in developed economies had been particularly hard hit. Many countries in the Eastern and Southern African Subregion had experienced a marked decline in their GNP and food productivity. In order to meet the current development problems the countries in the subregion had to make optimum use of their subregional framework, the Lusaka-based MULPOC. The MULPOC itself, and in association with PTA and SADCC provided the member States a forum for joint and concerted action in solving many of the problems.

16. He urged the Ministers to adopt the report of the Sixth Meeting of the Committee of Officials and its recommendations and congratulated the Committee of Officials for a job well done.

17. As regards fears expressed by some delegations on apparent duplication of efforts in the activities of the MULPOC, PTA and SADCC such was not the case. He proposed that an ad hoc committee of five countries plus the secretariats of PTA, SADCC, MULPOC and ECA should prepare a paper which would spell out clearly ways and means of establishing co-operation between the Lusaka MULPOC on the one hand and PTA and SADCC on the other.

18. He thanked member States for supporting United Nations General Assembly Resolution 37/138 and UNDP for having financed the operations of all the MULPOCs during the past six years and hoped it would continue to finance project-oriented activities. Member States should pledge their financial and material support to the Lusaka MULPOC during the next pledging conference of the United Nations Trust Fund for African Development which would coincide with the 18th Session of the Commission and the Ninth ECA Conference of Ministers and hence the commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of the Commission.

19. A vote of thanks was moved on behalf of all the delegations to the Right Honourable Prince Mabandla, Prime Minister, and the people of the Kingdom of Swaziland by Honourable H. Wariithi the Head of the Kenya delegation.

Presentation of the Report and Recommendations of the Sixth Meeting of the MULPOC Committee of Officials (Agenda item 4)

21 He then presented the recommendations of the Committee of Officials to the Sixth Meeting of the Lusaka MULPOC Council of Ministers for consideration and adoption.

The Council of Ministers, therefore endorsed the following recommendations:

VIII. SPECIAL PROJECTS

Assistance to Liberation Movements

71. Under this agenda item the representative of the United Nations Institute for Namibia (UNIN) thanked Her Majesty the Queen Regent, Her Government and the People of the Kingdom of Swaziland for the warm hospitality accorded to liberation movements and the ECA Executive Secretary, Professor Adebayo Adedeji, for having invited liberation movements to the meeting as observers. They appreciated such participation, because it afforded them the opportunity to see how the second stage of the liberation struggle was being waged and because the very fact that some units of the subregion were not free created problems for subregional economic co-operation and integration. Liberation Movements supported the establishment of the PTA and SADCC because such groupings would help lessen the dependence of the member States on the racist regime of South Africa. These efforts coincided with the efforts of National Liberation Movements who were determined to dislodge the apartheid regime from the face of Africa. Further, he regretted the fact that liberation movements were attending the meeting incognito in that no name plates identifying them had been placed on their tables. However, they were happy with the hospitality accorded them and with the term of Resolution V on "Assistance to Liberation Movements".

72. The representative of the Pan Africanist Congress of South Africa (P.A.C.) requested that member States should consider offering jobs to graduates belonging to all liberation movements.

73. Various delegations said their countries already offered employment to graduates from liberation movements and hoped that countries in which such graduates were trained would also consider employing them. In the light of the foregoing discussions the meeting adopted the report and draft resolution V on Assistance to Liberation Movements.

Lusaka MULPOC draft Work Programme

74. Since the mandate and terms of reference of existing intergovernmental organizations were different there was no risk of duplication, however, every effort should be made to avoid possible operation overlap within the subregion. The meetingwas informed that the draft work programme would be revised and considered by the Supervisory Committee before being sent to the member States. In this regard, the Council of Ministers decided that:

(i) A Committee consisting of Botswana, Ethiopia, Kenya, the United Republic of Tanzania and Zambia should be constituted, and should be assisted by the secretariats of ECA, PTA and SADCC;

(ii) The terms of reference of the Committee should be to study and make recommendations on ways and means by which MULPOC may foster and intensify co-operation and co-ordination with and between PTA and SADCC;

(iii) The ECA Lusaka MULPOC should convene and service the meetings of the Committee;

(iv) The report of the Committee should be submitted to the Seventh Meeting of the Lusaka MULPOC Council of Ministers.
